

Mutt Lynch Winery in USA TODAY

THURSDAY JULY 22, 2010

Mutt Lynch Winery was mentioned in an article devoted to dogs...

Take your dog to dinner

By Sharon L. Peters
Special for USA TODAY

'Very few misbehaving dogs'

"Folks know their dogs and how they'll behave in certain situations," says Chris Lynch of Sonoma County's Mutt Lynch Winery in Healdsburg, Calif., voted the wine country's most dog-friendly winery by the monthly newspaper Bay Woof in San Francisco. "We get very, very few misbehaving dogs" at the private tastings and giant charity functions, where the guests often consist of 300 humans and 100 or more dogs, he says.

It's the rare person who questions the winery's blatant dog-friendliness. "Even people who don't bring their dogs to the winery appreciate animals and enjoying having them around," Lynch says.

And those who don't? "We tell them there are a lot of other very nice wineries around."

"Bark Less, Wag More!"

Brenda Lynch, Owner & Winemaker